Institute of Technology and Business Development (CCSU-ITBD)
Conference Center

About the Workshop Presenter:
FRED SHAMBURG, A “National Shingo Prize Examiner”

Fred Shamburg, the founder and President of Leanovations, LLC was introduced to lean by one of the originators of the “Toyota Production System”, and very quickly developed a passion for teaching and applying lean principles to the total business enterprise.

Fred has held executive and senior level positions in manufacturing, operations, and engineering with large international corporations. Fred’s background and experience includes; over 20 years experience in lean and operational excellence with extensive international experience in Europe, Asia, Mexico, and including all regions of the USA. , working with companies in diverse industries that includes aerospace, paper, automotive, medical, refrigeration, metal cutting, pc boards, electro-mechanical assemblies and the military. Mr. Shamburg is a graduate of Southern Illinois University with a BS in Industrial Technology and holds a MS in Operations Management from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI).

The National Shingo Prize Board of Governors recently announced the selection of Fred Shamburg, as a “Shingo Prize Examiner”. The Shingo Prize is the premier manufacturing award recognition program for North America that highlights the value of using lean/world-class manufacturing practices to attain outstanding status.

Prior to starting Leanovations, LLC, Fred was a lean executive with a large international corporation where his responsibilities included managing and leading the lean transformation of a group with 37 facilities worldwide generating over $1 billion in sales.
